One station for all soldering tasks Weller WXR 3 Rework Station. It can do anything, and it does it better!

WXR 3 Rework Station. It can do anything, and it does it better!

Weller has now complemented its successful WX platform with the addition of a matching WXR 3 Rework Station.

The new WXR 3 Rework Station is designed to handle all tasks related to soldering, desoldering, and the use of hot air in your production process. This multifunctional station is notable for its high cost efficiency. It saves significant acquisition costs compared to buying individual units.

WXR 3. It can do anything, and it does it better!

As a member of the WX family, the station offers full WX tool compatibility, tried-and-tested benchtop functions and all essential traceability features. The WXR 3 is a 3-channel station with an enormous total power output of 600 watts - more than any other station on the market. The intelligent power management system automatically controls the power output of the individual tools and thus saves a tremendous amount of energy. The multifunctional USB port allows quick and mobile configuration. The WXR 3 has all the standard user-friendly features you have come to expect from Weller products: backlit graphic display, multilingual menu navigation and operating status display. A large selection of connectable tools, such as soldering irons, preheating plates, desoldering tools or solder baths, leaves nothing to be desired. A built-in pump means the station is not dependent on an external compressed air supply.

WX Launch-Campaign

You can look forward to an unusual WX launch campaign. Weller aims to send out a message of authenticity by using its staff to advertise the WX family. The WX soldering stations will become real team members. And the team will be getting a new member – Rob, the Reworker. The staff at Weller embody credibility and pride in their products, and they stand confidently behind their company.

On www.weller.de you will find our new WXR 3 movie.
