Dear Customer:

This letter serves as notification that as of February 17, 2017, all orders for thermostat product family 3100U devices will no longer carry CSA certification. Honeywell has carefully evaluated the marketplace, effort, and cost of maintenance, and has elected to no longer maintain this certification.

The existing, similar UL approval of these products is not affected by this notice.

If your open orders for these products are not affected by this change, please provide written notification to Honeywell that CSA certification is not required to allow your order to be booked and/or shipped. Any existing orders for these products that have not been addressed by 01-APR-2017 by either a written authorization to ship without the CSA marking or a purchase order modification will be cancelled.

Please contact your customer care representative for potential solutions for alternative products or Mike Heimann at the contact info below if you need more information.

Regards,

Mike Heimann
