Dear < Customer FSE Last Name>,

Subject: Second Source Components to Select FSG Series Force Sensor Cover and Housing

This is to inform you that in order to better enable us to provide continuous supply to our customers, Honeywell is adding a second source, effective immediately, for the cover and housing for select FSG parts.

All new parts have undergone extensive design validation testing. The electrical performance of sensors built from the legacy and new components is the same, and customers should notice no difference. There may be minor differences in non-critical dimensions or appearance for some housings and covers, which will not impact the functionality of the part. Please refer to the illustrations below for further information.
