

Product Change Notification

August 3rd, 2026

Dear Valued HARTING Distribution Customer,

As part of HARTING's continued investment and expansion within the Americas region, we are currently increasing our manufacturing capacity and operational footprint to support future growth and customer demand.

During this expansion period, production of select Han® A and Han® B products will be temporarily transferred to our manufacturing facility in Germany, effective September 1st. This temporary relocation will help ensure uninterrupted supply, maintain strong delivery performance, and provide the capacity needed to support our growing business requirements. Any new orders placed following this notification will be processed and fulfilled directly through Germany. All current open orders will be fulfilled within the US before the transition has been completed.

Our long-term strategy remains firmly rooted in expanding our manufacturing presence within North America. Once the regional expansion activities are complete, we intend to transition production back to the United States to further support domestic manufacturing initiatives and our commitment to the Manufactured in America campaign.

We do not anticipate any disruption to supply as a result of this temporary production adjustment. Should any specific products be impacted, your Customer Success representative will communicate directly with you.

We appreciate your continued partnership and support as we invest in strengthening our regional manufacturing capabilities and position HARTING for future growth.

Best Regards,
